THE HELENSBURGH PARTNERSHIP

MEDIA RELEASE

A Day of Drama for Helensburgh

The Helensburgh Partnership is delighted to announce that a day of drama and street theatre will be held in Colquhoun Square this Saturday (9th August), put together by local event organisers Let's Party.

The event kicks off at 10am with body painting displays, face painting and scar creation with make-up which will run alongside a "drop-in-drama" workshop which will continue throughout the day. The day will culminate in a street production by Helensburgh's Performance Theatre School commencing at 5pm. A team of drama professionals from Glasgow will be directing the day's proceedings and it is open to everyone to have a go.

Derek Anderson, Chief Executive of the Partnership, says "It is great that local business people are willing to put something back into the town. This should be an exciting event, for people of all ages and abilities, which will bring a buzz to the square once more, following on from the success of the recent Continental Market. I would like to thank Toni and Louise at Let's Party for making this event happen".

"Hopefully, there should again be benefits to local traders resulting for this street event. I hope Argyll and Bute Council recognises the efforts being made by the residents of Helensburgh when it comes to deciding on the Outline Business Cases".

Further information about the event can be obtained from Let's Party on West Princes Street or by calling 07814 888968.
